On Your Radar

Welcoming students back to campus comes with many celebrations, but the return to in-person offerings may present challenges for our incoming and returning students. Your students could be grieving, experiencing anxiety, or feeling under-prepared after a year of virtual learning. Read up on ways to be more prepared to manage the diverse needs of your students and take a proactive approach to your advising strategies.

New Student Website

New Student Academic Advising website launched to help support students through their advising experience at VT. As this website becomes a hub for students, we will be adding new items for the start of the fall semester
